Bowling Tip of the Month

Practice Thoughts:

In order to make consistent shots, you must have a plan. Take the time between shots to analyze exactly what you want to do with your next delivery, whether it be your push-away, your footwork, your timing, your follow-through, etc. Focus on one thing only. Key on it and make your delivery. Once you step on the approach and get set, you should be on your way within a second or two since you are only thinking of one thing. You will most likely find that your mind will want to have several thoughts. Don't give in. One thing at a time. Practice it and you will see improvement in that one area very quickly.
